IUPAB News #84

Social Media

IUPAB is now on social media platforms, and more than 600 daily poster presentations. Career and education sessions, along with committee programs and exhibitor presentations ensured the 5 days were filled with a broad range of biophysical topics by Lisa Jones, Jerelle Joseph, Aaron Streets, and Kandice Goodwin.

The 67th Biophysical Society (BPS) Annual Meeting, held from February 18-22, 2023, in San Diego, California, was the world’s largest biophysical congress. The event, attended by over 25 sessions, ~120 short oral presentations and ~800 posters, the appetite for in-person congresses is back. Four satellite meetings and a pre-congress summer school are included over 50 counties and showcased thousands of scientists from around the world. Plenary speakers include David Julius (USA), Molly Stevens (UK), Lewis Kay (Australia) and Ardem Patapoutian (USA) from Nobel Prize award ceremonies.

The congress will be in the University of Stockholm, situated within the City National Park of Stockholm and near to Nobel Prize ceremonies. The City of Stockholm has generously invited participants to a reception at the famous Stockholm Concert Hall.
